NEHU turns 43

NEHU celebrated the 43rd University Day on May 26, at the Multi-Use Convention Hall. The programme kicked off with a flag hoisting and lighting of the lamp by Prof. S.K. Srivastava, Vice-Chancellor, NEHU in the presence of teachers, students and non-teaching staff. Two cultural items in the form of a Bihu dance and Jaintia dance enlivened the programme. Appreciation awards were also awarded to four recipients -- two from Shillong campus and two from Tura campus.

In his welcome address, Dr. J.N. Nayak recalled how NEHU has grown since its inception in 1973 and urged everyone present to use this occasion to introspect and to work together for a better future.

In his speech, Prof. Srivastava said this is the time to introspect on what the University has achieved and to further strengthening it by cultivating harmony and resonance among the teaching, non-teaching staff and students. The Vice-Chancellor also assured the teaching and non-teaching staff that in the next few months strengthening of manpower of various departments will be taken up. “Let me assure you that several DPCs have been held and more will be held in the near future. Also, regarding our faculty colleagues, whatever promotions are due, within the norms, whatever incen-

NEHU Celebrates Intl. Day of Yoga

The North-Eastern Hill University celebrated the second International Day of Yoga on June 21, with a host of programmes at the Multi-Use Convention Hall. The activities began with a welcome song by university students followed by the welcome address.

The occasion also saw the presence of two Swamijis -- Swami Arpit from Art of Living, Guwahati and Swami Achyutanand Maharaj of Ramakrishna Mission, Shillong as the Guests of Honour. Both the Swamis outlined the philosophical underpinnings of yoga and its benefits for human body, mind and character besides that of individual peace, happiness and world peace.

Two demonstrations of yogic postures were performed by the members of Meghalaya Yoga Association led by Mrs. Chinmoyee Gupta Roy and by the team of Ms. Habiba Passah of Mawlai, Shillong. Mrs. Shamita Chakraborty from Art of Living led the participants to practice the yoga protocol issued by the Government of India.

Prof. Sri Krishna Srivastava, Vice-Chancellor of NEHU and the Chief Guest on the occasion spoke on the significance of the International Day of Yoga and its contribution to our corporate life.

The occasion saw the participation of a large number of students, teachers and non-teaching staff, who particularly showed their enthusiasm in the practice of the various yoga protocols.

The programme ended with a prize distribution to the winners of the events organised during the Yoga Fest on June 16 and 17 as well as to the winners of Yoga practices on June 21.

tives which are due to them will be taken care of,” he added. He also took the opportunity to thank all those in making the recently concluded Convocation a success.

“It’s been on record that MHRD Minister, Mrs. Smriti Zubin Irani (the chief guest on that occasion) has remarked that NEHU is one of the most disciplined Universities,” he said adding that within days of her departure calls have been coming in from AICTE and the MHRD departments. “So issues that are pending like AICTE approval, maintenance of various buildings and so will be expedited,” he assured. Prof. Srivastava also mentioned that 12th Plan and the issues dogging it, which will be expedited soon. He also promised new ventures that NEHU will be taking up and invited all present to think of new programmes that NEHU can take up. The Vice-Chancellor also promised to take up the issues of the students very soon. He concluded his speech by subscribing to the idea of a conflict free zone. “For every issue, every problem, there is a solution and we must all aspire to enhance our capacity, strength and togetherness by putting aside our differences. Together we can truly rise and build this University and take it to greater heights.”

In his speech, Prof. Vanlalruata Rengsi, President of North-Eastern Hill University Teacher's Association (NEHUTA) reminded the gathering about the role of a university, which is to fill the needs of a nation and not to stagnate in mire of conflicts and protests. Comparing the Indian universities to their foreign counterparts, Prof. Rengsi said we need to emulate the foreign universities by raising our standards of education, research and quality of students. He called upon the teachers to rise above their petty bickering over many issues so as to take NEHU to greater heights. He hoped that with the appointment of a regular Vice-Chancellor, the teaching and non-teaching staff can pursue their work peacefully and without interruptions.

Appreciating the points put forward by Prof. Rengsi, Dr. Purna Bahadur Gurung, Vice-President, North-Eastern Hill University

Non-Teaching Staff Association, in his speech recalled how NEHU was established and why. He termed the foundation of NEHU as a “landmark in the history of this region in the field of higher learning and subsequent all round development and prosperity.” He offered his gratitude to all those instrumental in making NEHU great and hoped that the university continues to grow from strength to strength.

On behalf of the students, Mr. Tyrchain Mitre Lipon, President of the North-Eastern Hill University Student’s Union (NE-

Remembering Dr. B. R. Ambedkar

The 125th birth anniversary of Dalit icon and architect of the Indian Constitution, Dr B R Ambedkar was observed at the North-Eastern Hill University on March 14 at the Vice-Chancellor's Conference Hall. Conducted by the Department of Political Science, the programme saw a lively discussion on the contributions of the Indian jurist, economist, politician and social reformer. Some of his famous quotes were seen dotting the walls of the hall.

The programme was chaired by Dr. H. Srikanth from the Department of Political Science and attended by the officiating Vice-Chancellor, Prof. A.C. Mohapatra, teachers, students and staff.

In his keynote address, Prof. R. K. Satapathy from the Department of Political Science briefed the gathering about the early life of Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar, his struggle and subsequent achievement in academics which led him to be the first Matriculate and Graduate from among the Dalits. His exposure to western education and his time at Columbia University and the London School of Economics, where he earned a law degree and various doctorates, inspired him to uplift the plight of his own people back home, Prof. Satapathy said adding that some of the issues most dear to him were the abolition of the caste system and the importance of individual liberty. Outlining the various contributions of Dr. Ambedkar in the field of politics, economics and social reforms, Prof. Satapathy said Dr. Ambedkar was a true nationalist whose legacy continues to be relevant even today. It is no wonder that for the first time, the United Nations (UN) celebrated the birth anniversary of Dr. Ambedkar, Dr. Satapathy informed.

Likening the treatment of Dalits even in this day and age to slavery, Prof. Mohapatra said Dr. Ambedkar is living proof that a Dalit is as intellectual as anyone else. Prof. Mohapatra said the most admirable qualities of Dr. Ambedkar were his intellect and rationality. "He was a modernist and to think of him as just a Dalit is a great disservice to the idea of Dr. Ambedkar," Prof. Mohapatra said.

Giving an insight into the turbulent years of the nationalist movement, Dr. Srikanth said that at the peak of the movement, Dr. Ambedkar decided not to enter politics but rather to focus more on the social and cultural issues. "There was a need for social and cultural reform to take place alongside the nationalist movement. But our leaders were more concerned with political freedom and not social freedom," Dr. Srikanth said. Dr. Srikanth was of the opinion that even now we do not have social and cultural freedom and it is here that those in academics can figure out how useful Dr. Ambedkar's ideas can be to promote a just

HR-Conclave held at Tura Campus

NEHU, Tura Campus witnessed its 6th HR Conclave- SYNERGOS' 2016 on May 21st, on the theme "Skilling the Unskilled- Handling the Corporate Dilemma." The program was organised by the Department of Management and the Department of Agri Business and Food Technology.

In his speech, Prof. S.K. Srivastava, Vice-Chancellor, NEHU, Shillong who graced the event as the Chief Guest, praised and congratulated the departments for organising the event successfully. He termed the theme very apt and felt it would surely benefit the students who are potential managers and budding entrepreneurs.

In his inaugural speech, Mr. E.D. Khongwir, Executive Director, IOCL, Bongaigaon, Assam and Guest of Honour on the occasion, emphasised the significance of skilling among youths, particularly those belonging to North East India. He underlined the contribution of IOCL in the training and development of executives.

Special invitee Mr. A.K. Borthakur, DGM (HR), Power Grid Corporation of India Ltd, motivated the present batch of students to work steadfastly towards upgrading themselves and invited them to join his organisation, just as students of previous batches had been recruited through the placement cell of the University.

Resource persons from various corporate houses such as Flug-alsoft, Vet Helpline Pvt. Ltd., Pragati Edutech Pvt. Ltd., HDFC Bank among other private and public sector banks, participated in the three sessions of the Conclave.

The first session was titled "Bridging Skill and Competency gaps- Balancing of expectations between Corporate houses with Newly minted Graduates" while the topic for the second session was "Job Fitment Vs Talent Retention- Handling of Attrition Level among new recruits". The third session was on "Demographic dividend- Harnessing the Unique Talent of Youths of North-East India." This was followed by a Valedictory function, felicitating the guests. Prof. G. Singaiah, Director of the Conclave and Campus Incharge of NEHU, Tura Campus, expressed his happiness at the grand success of the event. He also specially acknowledged the meticulous work of the Convenor, Dr. Abhigyan Bhattacharjee, Associate Professor in the Department of Management.

Others too had something to say about India's first law minister and the principal architect of the Constitution of India. According to a law student, Dr. Ambedkar is synonymous with social justice, equality and rule of law. "We need to practice what he preached," was his opinion. Another suggested the placement of a statue of the great man at the campus and the teaching of his ideology in schools, colleges and universities.

According to Prof. Xavier P. Mao from the Department of Philosophy, occasions such as these should not be a mere ritualistic exercise. He said the decision of the UN to observe Dr. Ambedkar's birth anniversary should be an important sign for our country to stop the exploitation of the weaker sections of the population.

One of the qualities of Dr. Ambedkar that captivated Prof. Manmohan Singh from the Centre for Science Education, was his ability to differentiate between directive principles and law, which none of us understand.

"He has discarded rules, whereas we are only bothered by rules and if we cannot carry this message in an institution like NEHU, then celebration of this nature is having a very limited value," he added. The senior professor also stressed on planning, the concept which Dr. Ambedkar introduced. "This uni-

The Third Technical Session was chaired by Prof. Raj Kumar, M.D. University, Rohatak and Dr. Vanita Patil, Government College of Arts, Science & Commerce, Sankhali, Goa. There were eight presentations during the session on Behavioural intentions, Impact of tourism on the economie growth of the NE region, Tourism Potential of India's Act East, Marketing of Indigenous Art Forms, Service Branding in tourism and assessing trends and Practices of online marketing communication.

The fourth technical session was chaired by Dr. Y. Venkata Rao, Head, Department of Tourism Studies, Pondicherry University and Dr. Utpal Debnath from NITIE Mumbai. During this technical session presentations were made on the Development of Marketing strategies to promote ecotourism in Arunachal Pradesh, Prospects and Challenges of tourism related entrepreneurs, Sustainable and Diversified entrepreneurship, Special interest tourism, Service excellence and quality.

At the end of the Conference it was also announced to have a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between NEHU, Shillong and Indian Institute of Tourism and Travel Management, Gwalior for the collaborative research, faculty exchange, organisation of conferences and research student exchange.

The Conference has also made few far-reaching recommendations that are related to Tourism and Hospitality marketing and also for policy planning. Some of the recommendations emphasised on strengthening the existing efforts needed for the sustainable development. Other recommendations were cross-sectoral in nature, and required wider consultation with other government departments.
