Organised by: Department of Management
North-Eastern Hill University (NEHU), Tura Campus,
Tura, Meghalaya-794002

VENUE: Conference Hall, Dept. of Management
NEHU, Tura Campus, Meghalaya

About the Seminar: The objective of Seminar is to discuss and debate on the various recent trends in Financial research, e.g. financial services and financial markets, corporate finance, financial reforms, financial crisis, convergence, financial engineering and financial inclusion are the recent trends in the financial system in India. There are financial implications in organizational decisions, whether the organization is a business firm, a nonprofit organization, or a government enterprise. Thus, financial executives are of central importance to overall planning and control, and non-financial executives must know enough finance fundamentals to work the financial implications into their areas of expertise. The increasing importance of finance for any organization has accompanied the evolution of the field of finance itself. Finance has evolved since the early 1900s from a descriptive to an analytical discipline recognized as a genuine science. Financial research builds on economic theory to focus on both sides of the organization's balance sheet, asset analysis and the optimal mix of liabilities, capital, equity and debt, including the implications of dividend decision, investment decision, financing decision and working capital decision for the firm.

Financial statements are prepared primarily for decision-making. They play a dominant role in setting the framework of managerial decisions. But the information provided in financial statements is not an end in itself as no meaningful conclusions can be drawn from these statements alone. The purpose of financial analysis is to diagnose the information contained in financial statements so as to judge the profitability and financial soundness of the firm.

Corporate financial reporting is the communication of financial statements and other related financial information to external users including investors, money lenders, suppliers, customers, Government agencies and public at large by a corporate form of organization. Since liberalization has undergone tremendous change and has been evolving into a new and vibrant system in the financial sector. As an important segment of the financial sector, it plays a significant role in mobilizing savings and channelizing them for productive purposes. As a part of financial sector reforms, a large number of initiatives have been taken to restructure the banking and insurance sector and a series of direct reforms have been brought out in Indian financial services, in this connection financial Research in the capital market, money market ,banking and insurance, the trading periods are enhanced in ‘ options’, forward and futures on stocks are being introduced, establishment of SEBI is one of the land marks in the regulation of capital markets in India. Research in finance helps financial experts and those other individuals involved to study how the financial industry is affected by market change. Finance is considered as vein of business and it is impossible to achieve your long-term and short-term goals without effectively managing your finances and financing is seed for business growth. Microfinance is the provision of financial services to low-income, poor and very poor self-employed people. Financial inclusion as the attempt to improve access to small deposits and small loans for poor households is neglected by banks. All stages of development for better, lasting and sustainable results. For this, the Government of India has introduced the “Micro finance” concept which is based on the idea that the poorest of the poor be organized into Self Help Group (SHG). The proposed seminar on the topic “Recent Trends in Financial Research”. The proposed seminar will be a forum for bringing together academia, research scholars and experts, to identify the opportunities for the development of financial Research and, Micro Finance Schemes and discuss ways to move forward to develop and introduce such instruments, and in general to broaden and deepen into financial research. The objective of the seminar is to discuss and debate on the various recent trends of financial research, e.g. Financial Markets, Financial Services ,Banking, Insurance ,Micro Finance & financial inclusion are the recent trends in the financial research in India. The Micro Finance concept and its impact on their socio-economic conditions of its members in North-east. These discussions will be helpful to remove vicious circle of poverty and unemployment in India in general and North-East in Particular.

About the Department of Management: The Department of Management was established in July, 2006 with an objective to provide the students with an appropriate combination of conceptual framework and practical insight into managerial challenges and business opportunities for grooming entrepreneurial initiatives.
