

InSC School in Chronobiology 2023

A capacity building initiative of

Indian Society for Chronobiology

In collaboration with

Department of Zoology and Research & Development Cell,
North Eastern Hill University (NEHU), Shillong

May 20-28, 2023

Chronobiology deals with oscillatory phenomena in living organisms and their adaptation to geophysical cycles. The studies include, but are not limited to comparative anatomy, development, physiology, medicine, genetics, molecular biology, behavior, ecology and evolution.

The Indian Society for Chronobiology (InSC) has taken an initiative to organize the present activity. The current school brings experts in the field, to teach and interact with a selected group of 20+ participants. Participants will be introduced to concepts, methods, recent developments, and applications of biological rhythms for animal and human welfare.
