ABOUT NORTH EASTERN HILL UNIVERSITY (NEHU)

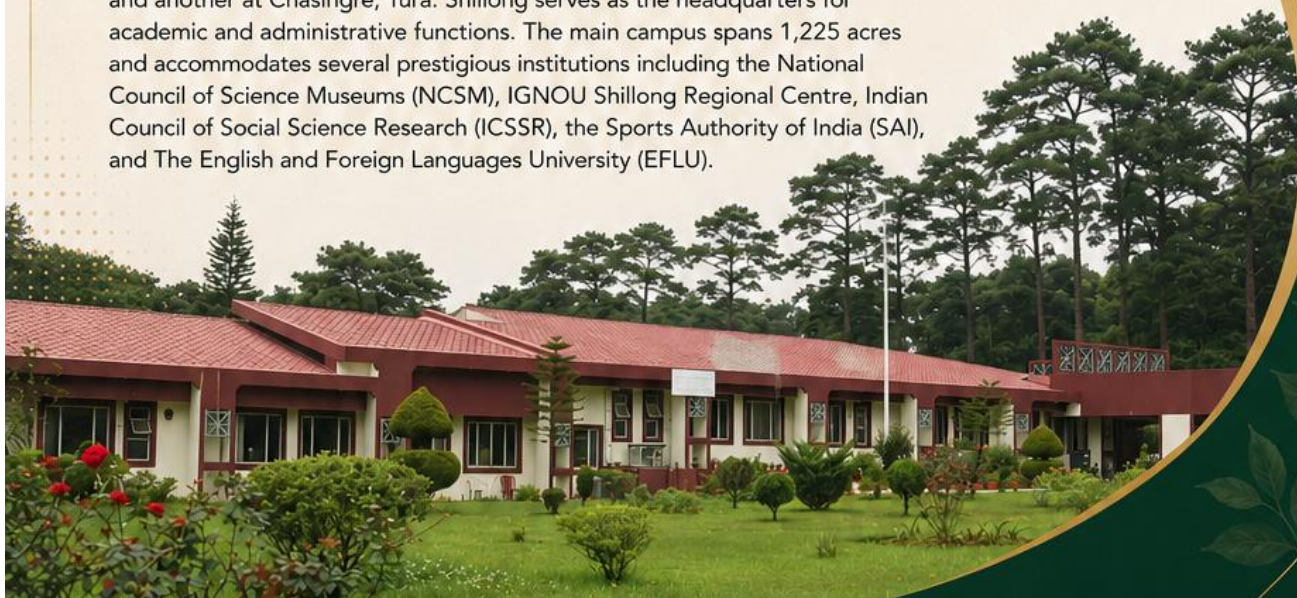

North Eastern Hill University (NEHU) is a Central University established on 19 July 1973 by an Act of the Indian Parliament. Its founding objectives, as stated in the Act, were to disseminate and advance knowledge by providing instructional and research facilities, to pay special attention to the improvement of the social and economic conditions and welfare of the people of the hill areas of the North-Eastern Region, and to promote their intellectual, academic, and cultural advancement.

Initially, the academic departments and the administration of NEHU at Shillong functioned from three prime sites in Shillong city — one from the former Maharaja of Mayurbhanj, another from the Rani of Bijni, and a third from the Government of Meghalaya, popularly known as the Horse-Shoe Building. The university now runs its central administration from its main campus in Mawkyntoh-Umsing.

The jurisdiction of the university extended originally to the states of Meghalaya and Nagaland, and the erstwhile Union Territories of Arunachal Pradesh and Mizoram. With the establishment of Nagaland University on 6 September 1994, NEHU's jurisdiction over Nagaland ceased. Likewise, with the establishment of Mizoram University, jurisdiction over Mizoram ceased from June 2001.

NEHU received the University Grants Commission's (UGC) "University with Potential for Excellence" designation in 2006. The National Institutional Ranking Framework (NIRF) ranked NEHU 151–200 overall in India and 101–150 among universities in 2024.

NEHU has two academic campuses — one at Mawkyntoh-Umsing, Shillong, and another at Chasingre, Tura. Shillong serves as the headquarters for academic and administrative functions. The main campus spans 1,225 acres and accommodates several prestigious institutions including the National Council of Science Museums (NCSM), IGNOU Shillong Regional Centre, Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), the Sports Authority of India (SAI), and The English and Foreign Languages University (EFLU).
